

An obvious example which seems to fit this pattern is the Mongol empire under Chinggis Khan and his immediate successors; the largest historical empire in terms of contiguous territory.